Where Chocolate Comes From

Put a number next to each of these statements to put them in order - the first and last has been done for you. Then draw a line to match the picture with the statement.

After 6 months, the cocoa pods are ripe and they are harvested.

At the factories, the beans are cleaned and then roasted.

Cacao trees are grown in large plantations in tropical regions.

The beans are covered with banana leaves and left for 5 days to ferment.

The beans are dried out in the sun.

The shells are removed and the beans are ground into a thick liquid.

Finally, the chocolate is packaged and sent to the shops to be sold.

The beans are shipped to chocolate factories all over the world.

The pods are split open with a machete and the cocoa beans are removed.
